Be Fit Food digital gift cards

Give someone the choice of what to order. Pick a gift value, add a personal message and leave the recipe decisions to them. A digital gift card can be a birthday present, a thank-you or a practical gift for someone who enjoys prepared meals.

Open the denomination you want to review its recipient options and quantity before checkout. These listings are for digital cards; the meal images do not represent a food order included with the purchase.

Add a personal touch

Each of these six product pages offers “I want to send this as a gift”. The form includes a recipient email, optional recipient name, an optional message of up to 200 characters and a “Send on” date field.

Choose the card denomination that matches your gift budget.

Open that product page and enter the gifting details you want to use.

Check the email address, message, date and quantity before completing your order.

If the gift needs to arrive on a particular date, confirm the digital delivery arrangements with our team before buying.

A gift card or a meal order?

A card lets you give a stated value without selecting recipes on the recipient's behalf. It does not reserve a particular box, program, meal quantity or food-delivery date. If you are planning a food-related gift, check delivery coverage for the recipient's address and let them review the current menu for their preferences and dietary requirements.

Questions before you choose

Can I buy one for myself?

The product descriptions offer the cards for yourself as well as for gifting. Check the ordering details relevant to how you intend to receive and use the card.

Does a higher value guarantee a particular meal package?

No package is listed as included with these cards. Check current food prices, delivery charges and the redemption conditions relevant to the intended purchase.

Where can I confirm validity and redemption terms?

Contact our team for the conditions applying to your chosen card, including any question about expiry, redemption or a particular offer. Call 1300 263 257 or email support@befitfood.com.au .
